2019 CONFERENCE IN ARKANSAS
Arlington Hotel
Hot Springs, Arkansas
Mid-Winter is Feb 21-24
Room Rate $89.00
Summer is July 19-24
Room Rate $89.00

The Southern Concourse is the official publication of the Southern States Correctional Association and is published quarterly (September, November, February and May). Any material submitted for publishing should reach the editor at least 30 days before the month of publication. The editor reserves the right to edit, change or decline any material submitted for publication.
Our Mid-Winter Training Conference held in February proved good training, good food and good company are not mutually exclusive. We left with our brains, bellies and hearts full.

Committee meetings continue to discuss, explore and discover ways to make our organization better. It was great to visit different committee meetings and see in action the dedication of our members and the desire to always strive to be better. By incorporating popular technology, developing diverse break-out sessions and going green, we are taking steps towards our future. That’s just a fraction of the goals set by our committees.

“Be Prepared and Get It Right” presented by Tammy Grant, Cassie Bourque and Maria Pollage-Toups enlightened us to the interaction between FEMA and Departments of Corrections when a disaster occurs. As we know, DOC is always ready to step in and provide any help needed during emergencies; however, after an event, the mountains of paperwork may put us in another crisis. The presenters shared their experiences with navigating through the bureaucratic paperwork in hopes that other agencies are able to build on what they have learned. Not recreating the wheel is the beauty of learning together.

In south Louisiana, food itself is a lifestyle that we invite everyone to embrace. There is no event where food does not play a prominent role. When asked to attend any activity, the reply is often, “What are we eating?” While we may not remember the event, we always remember if the food was any good. Some memories were made in February around BBQ and boiled crawfish. At first, some SSCA members were squeamish at the sight of crawfish, but after a brief lesson on peeling them, went from novice to veteran crawfish eaters quickly.

Now that y’all have had a taste of Baton Rouge, we will create even more memories in July. Our host committee continues to work tirelessly to make this happen. I look forward to our summer conference where we can again leave with our brains, bellies and hearts full.

2018 Annual Summer Conference

Louisiana has always played a unique and colorful role in the nation’s political fabric, and one of the most noted of Louisiana’s governors was one that is also directly tied to the hotel that is hosting the SSCA 2018 conference. Before our host hotel was known as the Hilton, it was the Heidelberg Hotel, and a suite on the 4th floor was continuously occupied by the then governor of Louisiana.

Huey Pierce Long Jr. (August 30, 1893 – September 10, 1935), self-nicknamed The Kingfish, served as the 40th Governor of Louisiana from 1928 to 1932 and as a member of the United States Senate from 1932 until his assassination in 1935. One of the unique things he did was to co-write his own song in 1935, “Every Man a King” that he used for self-promotion and in his campaign rallies.

Long began an unprecedented public works program, building roads, bridges, hospitals, and educational institutions. Huey P. Long’s reign of legislation brought textbooks, a highway, natural gas heating to New Orleans, and buildings still standing at LSU. Long created a public works program for Louisiana that was unprecedented in the South, with a plethora of roads, bridges, hospitals, schools and state buildings that have endured into the 21st century. He built 111 bridges and started construction on the first bridge over the Mississippi entirely in Louisiana, the Huey P. Long Bridge near New Orleans. He built a new Governor’s Mansion and the new Louisiana State Capitol, at the time the tallest building in the South. All of these projects provided thousands of much-needed jobs during the Great Depression, including 22,000—or 10 percent—of the nation’s highway workers.

On September 8, 1935, Long was at the State Capitol attempting to oust a long-time opponent. At 9:20 p.m., just after passage of the bill effectively removing the opponent, the rival’s son-in-law Carl Weiss, a physician from Baton Rouge, approached Long, and, according to the generally accepted version of events, shot him in the torso with a handgun from four feet away. Long’s bodyguards returned fire, killing Weiss instantly. Long died on September 10 at 4:10 a.m.

Long’s suite was on the 4th floor of the hotel you are staying in, and served as his base of operations while he was governor, and finally US Senator. There is an underground tunnel that connects the Hilton and the Hotel Indigo across the street that was often used by Long to shuttle back and forth for meetings without having to go into public. If you stand at the entrance to the lobby restaurant, you can see the stairs that descend to the tunnel on the left near the hostess station.

So as you walk the halls of this historic hotel, or you happen to find yourself visiting the suite Long once lived in, just be aware of all the history that went on in the corridors and spaces here!
Several incarcerated mothers and grandmothers at Central Mississippi Correctional Facility in Rankin County spent the last Saturday of the year in a special way – visiting with their children. The facility held its second Mom’s Day for three hours.

About 50 offenders and 100 children attended the event from 1-4 p.m. The numbers are comparable to the last event held on Sept. 30.

Only inmates who are incarcerated for a year with children up to 18 years of age and who have no infractions can participate. Mothers who remained trouble free after their participation in the first event also can take part in Saturday’s activities.

“In this new program is another example of this administration’s focus on rehabilitation,” Commissioner Pelicia E. Hall said. “It is important for mothers to maintain a physical connection with their children so that when they are released, the foundation for support is there. I also appreciate staff for finding ways to provide incentives for inmates who follow the rules.”

The program is being extended to grandmothers because “we have so many offenders serving so many years that they are grandmothers now,” said Warden Dean Epps, whose area is hosting the program.

Some mothers and grandmothers will see their children or grandchildren for the first time in months, if not years.

Inmate Amaryhana Crain and her 8-year-old daughter had an emotional reunion the first Mom’s Day. Crain had not seen her daughter since 2015. “When she first came in, she hugged me,” Crain said. “She cried. It was a good experience.”

Crain’s mother brought her daughter for the special visit. They watched her sing.

“She has grown up a lot,” Crain noted, as she looked at her daughter from across the room. “She’s gotten taller.”

CMCF Superintendent Ron King said there are plans to expand the program in 2018.

“The new program presents a unique opportunity for our female offenders to spend quality time with their children,” King said. “The setting is a much more relaxed environment and allows interaction outside of the standard more structured visitation sessions. We hope that this will continue and even strengthen the relationship between the offenders and their children.”

SSCA Catastrophic Weather Fund

A silent auction is held at every July SSCA conference to support the Catastrophic Weather Fund, please bring any items you wish to donate to the auction with you to the summer conference, or contact Cookie Crews, Executive Secretary, for shipping information. Also, be reminded that the fund is in place to provide needed assistance to SSCA members who have maintained their SSCA Membership for a minimum of one (1) year, and have sustained a recent loss due to a catastrophic weather event.

A catastrophic weather event is defined as a hurricane, tornado or flood that has been labeled as such by the National Weather Service. Once a catastrophic event has been declared by the National Weather Service, members of SSCA may apply, in writing, to their State Representative for assistance. The State Representative will then forward the request, with an attached explanation of the nature and circumstances of the loss, to the Chairperson of the Catastrophic Weather Fund Committee. The committee will consider requests on a “first come first served basis,” until the fund is depleted. The State Representatives’ names and contact information are found in the Concourse, or on our website at www.sscaweb.org.

The Polar Plunge is an annual event where people take a “Plunge” into the chilly waters of the Ohio River to raise money for the Special Olympics. Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency (KCCD) has a longstanding tradition of supporting this organization and participating in this event. This year, the Louisville Chapter of the Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency set a goal to raise enough money to become the “Top Law Enforcement Team.”

On Saturday February 24, the Polar Plunge for Special Olympics Kentucky was scheduled to be held in Louisville, Ky; however, the weather did not cooperate. A “No-Splash Bash” was held to celebrate all of the people that came together to raise money for this worthy cause. The KCCD Team from the Louisville Chapter had 18 members participate in the fundraising, which resulted in a $2,365 donation to the Special Olympics! The team was excited to receive the Top Law Enforcement Team Award at the No Splash Bash.

MDOC Expands Program to Improve Inmates’ Lives

Submitted by the Mississippi Department of Corrections

With the help of volunteers and mental health staffers, the Mississippi Department of Corrections has expanded a program to both male and female inmates to help them understand the behavior that led them to prison, how to cope while in prison and how to stay out of prison.

The program, commonly referred to as the 1A Men’s or the 1A Women’s Program at Central Mississippi Correctional Facility (CMCF) in Pearl, combines faith-based values with mental health and is available for inmates with life sentences and those within a year of release. The women’s program has been ongoing since 2009, while the men’s portion started in January. With recent graduations, 70 inmates have completed the program this year.

“The program is another example of our goal to provide meaningful rehabilitation,” Commissioner Pelicia E. Hall said. “For the offenders who have life sentences, they can still help society through this program by becoming positive influences on offenders who are released and giving those offenders a better chance at success.”

Joe S. Jones, 44, among the recent graduates of the 1A Men’s Program, said the program has made a difference in his life and those around him.

“This program is a light in our dark place,” said Jones, of Canton, who is serving two drug sentences - possession of cocaine in Leake County and sale of cocaine in Madison County.

“This means a lot to me. I pray that God will continue to bless this program and MDOC will allow it to continue to make a difference in men’s lives,” Jones said. “I have seen guys step up and take responsibility.”

Eric Hicks, 32, who graduated the program on Aug. 30 while in prison for burglary and grand larceny in Itawamba County, said he appreciated the instructors. “This program changed my life, and I hope to someday change someone else’s life for the better.”

Dr. Sandy Adams, director of Mental Health at CMCF, said plans are underway to expand the program from three days per week on a 12-week cycle to a four-day-a-week five month program. The goal is to help offenders “learn how to identify their destructive patterns of behavior and to give them the tools and skills to make the necessary changes to lead to a successful and productive life,” Adams said.

Classes include Addictive Personality, Boundaries, Anger Management, and Jobs for Life. “The purpose of this program is to grow emotionally, spiritually, and intellectually,” Adams said.
Ginger Estes, 55, who recently completed the 1A Women’s Program, said attending the program has helped her with anger management. “Anger is what got me here, and programs like this have helped me so much to understand my anger and to handle it better,” said Estes, who is in prison for possession of cocaine with intent to distribute in Prentiss County.

Inmates must be free of rules violations for three months before and during the program. They sign a contract promising to follow the program’s rules.

“Comments by staff and other offenders about the noticeable behavioral changes in the housing area outside of the program point to their attempt at making positive behavioral changes that affirm individual successes and hopefully, lifelong,” Adams said, referring to the male offenders who complete the program.

The graduations for the 1A Men’s and 1A Women’s Program are among several in recent weeks recognizing offenders’ completion of programs.

Other ceremonies include:

- The University of Mississippi Prison-to-College Pipeline Program’s Fall Graduation on Dec. 6 at the Mississippi State Penitentiary (MSP). Seven offenders completed the “Education and The Environment from Black Fiction to Creative Nonfiction,” a 15-week class conducted by Dr. Patrick Alexander and Dr. Ann Fisher-Wirth.

- Thinking for a Change Graduation of the Hinds County Probation/Parole Office & Hinds County Restitution Center on Dec. 6 at the Sparkman Auditorium at the Mississippi Agriculture & Forestry Museum. Forty-one (41) offenders graduated.

- Thinking for a Change Graduation for the Noxubee County Transitional Program on Dec. 7 at the Noxubee County Community Work Center. Twenty-four (24) offenders graduated.

- The Alcohol and Drug Program at Parchman today. Twenty-five (25) offenders completed the program.
Roadways blocked by fallen, splintered trees. Roofs of homes caved under the enormous weight of crushed branches. Power, electricity, the modern way of life...gone for an indefinite time. This was the reality that countless Georgia citizens faced in the devastating wake of Hurricane Irma.

Governor Nathan Deal issued a mandatory evacuation for coastal counties beginning on Sept. 6, 2017 in preparation for the hurricane. For GDC, however, preparation for Irma began upon its origin off the West Coast of Africa.

“Even with uncertainty of Irma becoming a hurricane,” said Operations Manager and Georgia Emergency Management Agency Liaison, Gary Bell, “we were already preparing, pre-staging as if it was going to be a hurricane, preparing documents, who’s going where, based on their mobility status; they had prepared everything well in advance.”

Bell mentioned that the storm had been monitored weeks prior and that as the storm progressed, it strengthened rapidly “unlike any of the storms” GDC has encountered before.

Fire Services and GDC’s Life Safety Program alongside of Facility Operations, were placed on call early as Sunday, Sept. 3. “All of our 19 state crews were put on standby,” said GDC Fire Services and Life Safety Manager Shawn Wombles. “Crews were told to prepare for at least a seven-day deployment due to the predicted storm size and potential for damage.”

Due to prestaging and strategic allocation of disaster-relief resources, however, GDC withstood the worst. “Prestaging set us up for success,” continued Bell. “We encouraged facilities to review their emergency plans and prepare for the projected storm coming.”

The prestaging involved trimming trees liable to be problematic, preparing water buffalos—large tankers that hold water—cleaning them then storing them with bottled water for internal need. Furthermore, pre-staging involved deploying transportation vehicles and affirming that evacuation staff have not been previously working. “We needed to make sure they were rested and ready to go,” said Bell. “So, that when the decision to evacuate is made, they’re ready to roll.”

Bell stated that GDC’s success with weathering Irma was largely due to checking generators and assuring their functionality. “I think that was very critical to the success during this event,” confirmed Bell, “because once they lost normal power, every facility that had a back-up generators turned on.”
Even smaller facilities, which did not have generators readily available had contracts for generators, according to Bell and the process of having them delivered happened quickly. “All our main state prisons and facilities had back-up generators,” said Bell, “and they all kicked on successfully; we didn’t have any facilities completely without power.”

According to Bell, the evacuation of 1,701 State Prison offenders and 252 Transitional Center offenders went smoothly overall. “That was a huge amount and a huge undertaking,” he said, “full credit goes to the transportation leadership on ground and staff at Coastal State Prison, Coastal Transition al Center and Special Operations.”

Bell explained that once the Commissioner made the decision to evacuate, Facility Operations began evacuating the offenders with disabilities first, then offenders with mental health concerns, followed by state and Transitional Center offenders. The offenders’ placement had been predetermined and identified by individual facility emergency plans.

One of the takeaways from Hurricane Matthew was the importance of prestaging mattresses. When offenders are transferred to other facilities, by means of state emergency, they are usually housed in gyms and supplying enough mattresses becomes an issue. “We had over a thousand mattresses pre-staged,” confirmed Bell, “along with 50,000 to 100,000 flex cuffs prepared.”

Although prestaging set GDC up for success, storms as powerful as Hurricane Irma can be unpredictable. According to Wombles, due to the impact of numerous downed trees and power lines left in Irma’s wake, each station responded to calls taking care of the nearby communities. One team was sent to Ben Hill County, one team to Johnson County and four teams were dispatched to DeKalb County.

“These crews assisted with cutting downed trees out of the roadways to allow citizens to safely travel out of their neighborhoods,” said Wombles. “For the first time Ware State Prison Fire Team was assigned to Georgia Search and Rescue (GSAR) Task Force 8 for potential deployment to Glynn County.”

Hurricane Irma’s wrath from the Caribbean, up through Florida to Georgia, while lessening in strength, was relentless. “The storm caused devastation in all the islands that was in its path,” Wombles went on. “Fortunately for Georgia, the storm weakened tremendously before entering Georgia; yes, we saw downed trees and power lines, structure damage and flooding in parts of Georgia, however, it could have been a lot worse had the storm remained as strong as predicted.”

Wombles continued to say that it was the first time in his career, which all 159 Georgia counties were Governor Declared Emergency prior to a disaster occurring. “This helps agencies and local governments recover at least some of their costs associated with the storm,” he said, “which allowed for better communication and plenty of preparation time for all agencies.”

Fire Services’ support for Hurricane Irma disaster relief was completed on Thursday, Sept. 21, however, there is more to be done. “The Administrative part of the process will begin as soon as we receive the information request from Budget,” said Wombles, “who will start the reimbursement part of the disaster.”

According to Bell, the road to recovery will be a long one, as many counties are still in the process of accessing Irma’s true impact. With a sound resolve and strategic preparation, GDC remained strong. “One thing I really wanted to key in on this time,” Bell said, “was to get out as much information as possible to the staff—because the more prepared the staff, the more prepared they will be to carry out the mission of the Georgia Department of Corrections.”
